

Nick Beim

Nick is a general partner at Matrix Partners, which he joined in 2001. He primarily invests in Internet and software companies, including BrightWire, a real-time information service for global corporate news; Care.com, the leading online marketplace for family care services; Conductor, an enterprise software-as-a-service platform for the management and measurement of natural search; Gilt Groupe, the largest private sale ecommerce network in the U.S.; Intent Media, an online advertising company currently in stealth mode; JBoss, the leading open source application server provider (Red Hat); OatSystems, a RFID application platform company (Checkpoint Systems); and TheLadders.com, the leading online destination for $100,000+ jobs. Nick joined Matrix from the high tech investment banking group at Goldman Sachs & Co. and the technology and media group at McKinsey & Co. Nick studied at Stanford University and Oxford University, where he was a Marshall Scholar. Nick serves on the board of Endeavor, a non-profit organization dedicated to helping entrepreneurs in developing countries.