

Tim Barrows

Tim Barrows is a general partner at Matrix, where he has invested in technology startups for twenty-five years. More than fifteen of the companies he helped establish and grow have gone onto successful acquisitions or initial public offering, including OnDisplay (IPO, acquired by Vignette); Qihoo (Nasdaq: QIHU); SilverStream Software (IPO, acquired by Novell); Starent Networks (Nasdaq: STAR); Sycamore Networks (Nasdaq: SCMR) and Tivoli Systems (IPO, acquired by IBM). Tim has advised and supported entrepreneurs across a range of technology sectors, including enterprise software, software-as-a-service, communications and systems. While continuing to support entrepreneurs starting companies in the U.S., Time also leads the firm's international efforts, which have included recruiting founding partners and establishing two new funds in Mumbai, India and Beijing, China.